Congress in Nutter's gun control crosshairs

Guns. Mayor Nutter calls for universal background checks. The event was part of a National Day to Demand Action.

Mayor Michael Nutter was at a North Philadelphia library Thursday as a part of a National Day to Demand Action on gun legislation.

Flanked by children and advocates, Nutter called on Congress to require background checks for all gun sales, which are currently required for purchases from licensed shops, but not from private sellers.

"It's like setting up two different lines at the airport – one where you have to go through security and one where you don't," Nutter said. "Which one do you think the criminals are going to choose?"

He called out Congress members for failing to act on a bill enacting universal background checks, which is currently stalled in committee.

"To be brutally blunt about it, I'm not sure what Congress is doing right now," he said. "They need to schedule a vote – we've had enough talking."

During a lull in the rally, a 10-year-old boy told Nutter that two of his friends were shot in the head. "I didn't know anyone who was shot when I was 10 years old," Nutter said, becoming emotional as he recalled his own childhood in West Philadelphia. "This needs to stop so our children won't know a friend or a classmate who has been shot."

Victims

Faces of gun violence

Neighborhood resident Joe Davis has been in a wheelchair since a 14-year-old shot him 30 years ago. "Every day this chair serves as a reminder of what we're all fighting for," he said.

"Common-sense legislation is a long time coming," said Mothers in Charge advocate Donna Giddings, whose own mother, son and friend were shot to death eight years ago just blocks away from the library.

"It's common sense to not allow a person to buy a gun without investigating their background," she said.

Chink's Steaks changes its name

Chink's Steaks is chucking its "disparaging" name, according to its owner. Joe Groh, who inherited the then-50-year-old name when he purchased the Northeast Philly steak shop in 1999, said he didn't change the name originally because of sentimental value. "Chink's was a local institution named after the original owner's childhood nickname," Groh said in a news release. "We did not associate it with the racial slur. ... Chink was a neighborhood celebrity." Chink's will now be known as Joe's Steaks + Soda Shop.

The Bank. Phillies fifth most valuable team in baseball

The South Philly ballpark has earned its nickname, "The Bank."

The Phillies are the fifth most valuable team in Major League Baseball, with a net worth of $893 million, according to Forbes magazine's annual report. For comparison's sake: In 2008, the year the Phillies won the World Series, they ranked 10th with $481 million. In 2010, the team ranked sixth with $537 million.

The Phillies are in negotiations with Comcast on a new TV deal, which could catapult the team's value. The old deal expires in 2015. METRO

Buckle up. Zip-line course proposed for Roxborough park

Could this come to a city park? / GETTY IMAGES

Roxborough residents better hang on tight.

The city's recreation department is proposing to build an outdoor adventure course, which includes a zip line, on five acres in Wissahickon Valley Park.

The "treetop adventure course" would feature wooden platforms constructed between trees connecting the zip lines.

Neighbors voiced concerns at a public meeting Wednesday, pointing to environmental, traffic and vandalism concerns.

City Councilman Curtis Jones Jr., whose district includes the five-acre parcel, said he heard mostly opposition to the project on Wednesday. He said it was about 2 to 1.

"We will definitely be continuing these conversations with the developer and with Wissahickon residents," Jones said in an email. "I've been hearing concerns from my constituents. If we can work it out with the developers so that those concerns are addressed, great. If not, we will have to pass."

TOM FOREMAN

POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT FOR CNN

THE EMAIL TAX

If all of humanity magically slips back into the Stone Age tonight, and I wake up as the sole soul with knowledge of future technologies, let me warn you that rebuilding is going to be a challenge. Despite having once held a subscription to Popular Mechanics and being reasonably handy with a Leatherman, I have no idea how to make steel, Tupperware or an adjustable recliner. Refrigerators and microwaves might as well be magic. And I don't know how the Internet functions, either. But I can tell you this: It's not because of the government.

So you can imagine my surprise to find political types circling more routinely around the idea of taxing the Internet as a key to ending our economic woes, as if it is an interstate highway we all need to pitch in on. In one official arena after another, the tide seems to be subtly shifting away from the "hands off" approach that has heretofore greeted the notion of an Internet tax, and more toward "well, let's think about that." Just this week, a New York court ruled that Internet companies can be compelled to collect sales tax for anything sold in that state, and the U.S. Senate followed suit by approving a non-binding Internet sales tax idea for all states. In Berkeley, Calif., a city councilman has lately been talking up taxing emails.

The notion is seductive. Governments coast to coast are strapped for money. People spend a lot of time on computers sending messages, buying blouses and surfing for porn. Ergo, tack a tiny tax onto each bit of Internet traffic, let the pennies add up and watch the budget problems melt away.

To be fair, most lawmakers have so far steered pretty widely away from the concept, clearly fearful of the public and business backlash that could follow. But the mere fact that an Internet tax keeps coming up is a sign that it is no longer unthinkable. So enjoying your unlimited free messaging and surfing while you can. Because I suspect, eventually, the tax man will boot up a surprise.

Newtown school gunman fired 154 rounds in five minutes

The gunman who killed 20 children and six adults at a Connecticut elementary school fired 154 rounds in less than five minutes, selecting high-capacity magazines from a home arsenal stocked with swords, knives and a cache of guns, officials said.

Investigators also found a newspaper clipping about a mass shooting in the home that Adam Lanza shared with his mother, along with a gun safe in his bedroom, receipts from shooting ranges and National Rifle Association certificates for both of them, according to court papers released on Thursday.

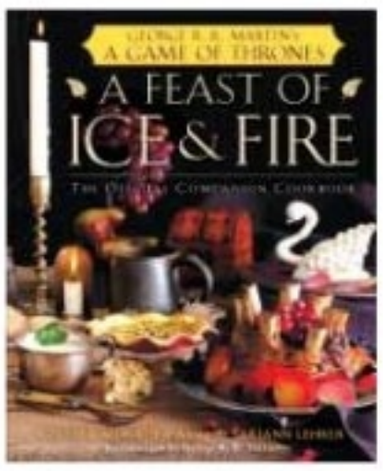
Digging in to a feast of 'Thrones'



Lose the forks and eat this chicken with your hands, says Monroe-Cassel. / CONTRIBUTED

Food. HBO's "Game of Thrones" returns for Season 3 on Sunday. There's no better way to celebrate the epic fantasy novels and TV series than to host a medieval-themed dinner party.

"A Feast of Ice and Fire," the official "Game of Thrones" cookbook, recreates some of the recipes featured in the novels, including Dothraki Blood Pie and Hen on the Wall. Co-author and chef Chelsea Monroe-Cassel shows us how to throw a premiere party, Westeros-style.

Setting the scene: Rich, romantic and grandiose

"We don't all live in castles, so it can be tough to transform a regular apartment into something that looks the part," the chef says. "One thing you can do is to set up some kind of entrance. Try to find a brocade or velvet throw from a thrift store. Cut it down the middle and tie it to either side of a door using gold cord to make a grander entryway. Illuminate the room by lighting candles everywhere. I'd avoid using scents that are too overpowering, such as rose or patchouli, as the heavy smell could clash with the flavors of the food. Simple beeswax is best."

Table etiquette: Finger licking is OK

"There's something awesome about being dressed up in a cloak and eating chicken with your fingers by candlelight," she says. "Most of your guests will be hard-core fans, and think it's awesome. But others may be a little more reluctant. So if you take away their forks, leaving just knives and napkins, they'll have to play along like everyone else. Put in the extra effort to find medieval-looking dishes and silverware — anything made from wood or pewter works."

ROMINA McGUINNESS
romina.mcguinness@metro.lu

The feast

Dig in

"People think medieval food is gross, but recipes that sound weird are delicious once made. ... Seeing an opulent spread of food is really satisfying. So once everything is ready, lay it all out on the table at once. The only course that should be saved for later is the dessert. Serve it once your guests have settled down to watch the show in the lounge. Lastly, don't forget to quench your guests' thirst. Make sure you have plenty of red wine and apple cider to get you through the night."

Lay out your spread all at once, advises Monroe-Cassel. CONTRIBUTED

Monroe-Cassel's party tips

1 The invite: "In a day and age where people just send out invites on Facebook or text, a physical invitation is incredibly important. Plus, having something mysteriously delivered to your doorstep is so much cooler than an online notification."

2 The dress code: "Request everyone come wearing a cloak (or a baggy coat). If you don't own one, wrap an old skirt around your shoulders and use a pin to clasp it around your neck.

3 The music: Go for MS MR — the pop duo's hauntingly beautiful song "Bones" is featured in the Season 3 trailer. Or break out The Hold Steady — the lyrics to their song "The Bear and the Maiden Fair" were actually written by Game of Thrones author George R.R. Martin. But as it won't be out in time for your party, we recommend you have their latest album, "Heaven is Whenever," on repeat.

Recipe. The starter: Simple Dornish fare

Ingredients

- Hummus
- Pita bread
- Feta cheese
- Purple olives

"We haven't gotten to this in the show yet, but the Dornish have some of the best finger food. Take a platter and heap it with purple olives, flat bread, hummus and feta cheese."

1 Place the hummus, and other goodies on a platter and serve.

Recipe. Main course: Honeyed chicken

"This is essentially just a roast chicken with a good sauce, but it's great because it's straight out of the halls of Winterfell. Plus, if you deny your guests silverware, they have to tear into it with their bare hands, and everything tastes better eaten that way."

Ingredients

- 1 whole chicken for roasting
- Olive oil
- Salt

Sauce:
- 1/2 cup apple cider vinegar
- 1/3 cup honey
- 1 tsp. fresh mint
- Small handful of raisins
- 2 or 3 tbsp. butter

1 Rub the chicken down with olive oil and salt. This will ensure the skin is ultra-crispy once cooked. Heat the oven at 450° F and leave to roast for approximately one hour.

2 In the meantime, combine all the ingredients for the sauce in a pan and leave to simmer until the raisins look plump and the mixture thickens. Remove from the heat and when the chicken is done, coat it with the honey sauce.

Recipe. Dessert: Lemon cakes

Ingredients

- 3 tbsp. butter, softened
- ¼ heaping cup sugar
- 3 egg yolks
- Zest from one lemon
- ½ tsp. baking soda dissolved
- ¼ tsp. each salt, cloves and mace (similar to nutmeg)
- Pinch saffron
- 1 ¼ cup sifted all-purpose flour
- Juice from one lemon
- 1 tbsp. honey

1 Cream together the butter and sugar until smooth. Beat in the egg yolks. Blend in the baking soda, lemon zest, salt and spices. Stir in the flour and work until a ball of dough is formed. Knead gently until smooth.

2 Roll out the dough on a floured surface to a ¼" thickness. With a floured butter knife, cut the dough into small squares. Place them on a baking sheet lined with parchment paper.

3 Bake the cakes in a preheated 300° F oven for 15 minutes. Make sure they don't brown on the bottom. Place them on a wire rack. While they are cooling, mix the lemon juice and honey together in a pan on the stove over low heat. Let cool slightly before brushing onto cakes.

Max Irons and Saoirse Ronan share a sensitive moment in Stephenie Meyer's "The Host." / ALAN MARKFIELD

Teenage girls seriously read this silliness?

Film. The first non-"Twilight" Stephenie Meyer film is just as bizarre as the other ones.

Review

'The Host'

Director. Andrew Niccol

Stars. Saoirse Ronan, Diane Kruger

Rating. PG-13

Grade. • • ○ ○ ○

The works of Stephenie Meyer are written off, and not unfairly, as moony junk. But they're weird. The "Twilight" novels take a turn for biological rebellion that would nauseate even David Cronenberg. One day semioticians will have a field day with Meyer's "The Host," which features a young teen's lust literally suppressed, plus physical abuse and even a scene where our heroine begs her beloved to cut her.

The talented Saoirse Ronan ("Atonement") plays Melanie, a fierce teen captured during an alien invasion by glowing cartoon octopi things. But her "soul" — named Wanderer — proves conveniently nice and weak-willed. Melanie can talk to her parasite, and guilt-trips her into escape.

Most of "The Host" winds up taking place at a socialist commune, led by Melanie's benevolent hippie dictator uncle (William Hurt), in a pimped out cave that looks like the inside of an amusement park dark ride. A dye-blond Aryan villain (Diane Kruger) obsessed with capturing Melanie/Wanderer provides a little bit of drive, but as with "Twilight," most of the screen time is eaten up by mutual emo staring. The cave is populated by three bed-headed rent-a-hunks; good luck telling them apart. One is Melanie's old flame and another gets really into Wanderer, yielding not a love triangle but a love square.

But sex, as in all Meyers works, is bad, and the few kisses (no tongue) lead to creepy violence. The real love, though, winds up being between host and parasite, which is original. Questionable but overqualified director Andrew Niccol (writer of "The Truman Show") and Ronan give this more dedication than it deserves, but the film is irrepressibly nuts.

He's between a Rock and a hard place

Film. Dwayne Johnson, star of "G.I. Joe: Retaliation," gives us his idea of other film series he could take over.

The last time we spoke to Dwayne Johnson — aka The Rock — he said he'd earned the nickname "Franchise Viagra" because of his knack for injecting energy into lagging movie properties like the "Fast and Furious" and "Journey to the Center of the Earth" series. He's at it again with "GI Joe: Retaliation," the first sequel in the franchise, in which he grabs the alpha position from Channing Tatum to lead America's coolest covert military force. So we thought we'd see how Johnson could be deployed for other famous franchises — some struggling, some not. To our delight, he gave the assignment a lot of thought.

"You've got to give it thought because all these franchises are so beloved, and all of them have their own built-in mythology and affinity that's global, which makes it very special," Johnson says. "And it reminds me of when we were kids, how cool and fun big Hollywood movies can be."

With that in mind, here are his ideas:

"Star Wars": "What is the cross between a Sith and a Jedi? I don't know. Is there something in between that has a bit more neutrality, who vacillates between both sides? Kind of like a gray area, possibly. Being such a big fan of 'Star Wars' and the mythology of 'Star Wars,' my inner boy, my inner geek — which is a big geek, by the way — embodies both sides. So back when I was 8 years old I was both. And I don't know what that's called. What would that be?"

The Rock — sorry, Dwayne Johnson — shows Metro how he likes to Hulk out. / NED EHRBAR

"Star Trek": "My gut tells me we would have to create a character that puts not only the Enterprise but the entire [Federation] at risk in terms of destruction by one man. That's where I feel like we should go with that. And I love 'Star Trek,' by the way, but it feels like that. That's heavy, right?"

"Twilight": "All hypothetical, right? All hypothetical. Because this is not now saying that the Rock wants to be in 'Twilight.' [Laughs] In steps the most manliest, toughest son-of-a-bitch of a vampire the world has ever seen. He grabs Kristen Stewart, pushes aside Pattinson and quietly yet firmly says, 'We are now doing away with our boyhood ways.' Hypothetically."

"American Pie": "Wow. Wow, I would say ... I have no idea where I would fit in that. No clue, no clue."

"The Avengers": "I got it. I'm going to show you something right now. [See picture, left.] It is a great question to end on, because I have been thinking about this for some time. Sometimes there are moments in life where there are no words. This is one of those moments."

One more thing

'Indiana Jones'

The "Indiana Jones" franchise made room for Shia LaBeouf, why not the star of "Tooth Fairy"?

"That's tough. I love George Lucas, obviously. I love Harrison [Ford]. OK, I hunt him down. I hunt Indiana Jones down. When I hunt him down, there's a plot twist in there somehow where I then become the hero. [Laughs] And I share the hero mantle of 'Indiana Jones' with Harrison Ford. Yes. Because of my 8-year-old inner geek."

Indie spotlight

Cosmina Stratan comforts Cristina Flutur in "Beyond the Hills." / CREDIT: IFC FILMS

'Beyond the Hills'

Director Cristian Mungiu exploded on the scene with "4 Months, 3 Weeks and 2 Days," a chronicle of the abortion ban under Romanian dictator Nicole Ceausecu. His follow-up isn't as vital, but it's just as potent. While attempting to reunite with a newly devout friend, a mentally unwell woman gradually undoes a remote convent, leading to tragedy. It's not a take-down of religion so much as systems, and Mungiu directs the hell out of it with slowly building intensity crammed into tight cinemascope frames. Should he ever think to direct a straight-up thriller, look out.

'Ginger & Rosa'

The latest from filmmaker Sally Potter ("Orlando") starts as a film about female adolescent friendship between red-maned Ginger (Elle Fanning) and more boho Rosa (Alice Englert) in London 1962. Soon it becomes more about the former's fear of the bomb. The subject would seem to call for typical Potter gimmicks, but it's the least bold, most approachable and least divisive of her films, more about the actors than her. And yet, let down your guard and it still has the capacity to surprise you.

Dangerous and Movin' dancers groove in a dark, dystopian world

Like the bad kids in high school, dAm lounges in the stairwell. / SCOTT PARK

Arts. Tom Cruise's couch jump inspired this new show at the Performance Garage.

Most of America saw a celebrity unhinged when Tom Cruise professed his love for Katie Holmes by jumping on a coach on "The Oprah Winfrey Show."

Scott Park, artistic director of the upstart Philly Dangerous and Movin' Dance Company, saw inspiration for a new work.

"Most people talked about how he was crazy — but he was just acting different, why do people all need to act the same?" Park says. "He came off as being a little overboard, but I didn't see it as crazy. He was somebody loving somebody else and he was showing it to the world."

In Park's new work, "Evol," it's a dark, dystopian world where inhabitants, unlike Tom Cruise, do not have love or compassion for one another. Those with love in their heart are considered infected members of society and are to be executed.

"These characters are torn and they do different things to escape from the reality of living in this world," says Park, who founded Dangerous and Movin', or dAm, in 2009. "Some drink their sorrows, some cope with violent sex and some take drugs to help them live."

CHRIS JORDAN
letters@metro.us

Equal rights

The movements of the troupe's seven dancers are accompanied by the recorded hard rock of groups like Marilyn Manson and Rammstein. There's a video component, too.

"We have our dancers in white face with black lines — it's very menacing," Park says. "The idea is to make them alien figures."

But the loveless concept of "Evol" is very much rooted in our world, he says.

"The piece is a critique on society," says Park. "Gay marriage is one issue. It's one example of a class of people not being able to pursue their happiness."

Join the walking dead at the Philly Zombie Crawl. / MARK WILKENS

It's time to bring out your dead

Party. The Philly Zombie Crawl is alive and kicking for its eighth year.

The eighth annual Philly Zombie Crawl is bringing out the ghouls this Easter Sunday, the day "the world's most famous zombie rose from the dead," says crawl cofounder DJ Robert Blake.

"We were sitting around at Tattooed Mom in 2005 and decided we wanted to do some sort of zombie party," says Blake of himself and fellow founder Dave Ghoul. "We joked it should be on Easter. And then it went from just a party idea to getting a couple of bars involved — and then a bunch of bars."

The undead fiesta kicks off at TLA — zombie "home base" for the night — at 6 p.m., with a pre-game featuring Ghoul and DJ Kiltboy. No need to show up all zombified: Makeup artists will be on hand to deck you out for a $10 fee. But with Blake expecting upwards of 600 participants, expect lines.

Prizes for best brain-eater will be given out at TLA before the party continues with a stroll up South Street, with several bars offering drink specials. Then it's back to TLA to watch "Night of the Living Dead" and check out a performance from the Rigor Mortis Revue, which touts itself as a "traveling horror/fantasy burlesque troupe bringing boobs, blood and adventure."

After-party

As if that's not enough walking dead for one evening, the night ends with a soiree at Fluid, which is closing its doors forever (unless it comes back to life) next weekend. It's free for zombies who already bought a $5 TLA wristband and $5 for regular folk.

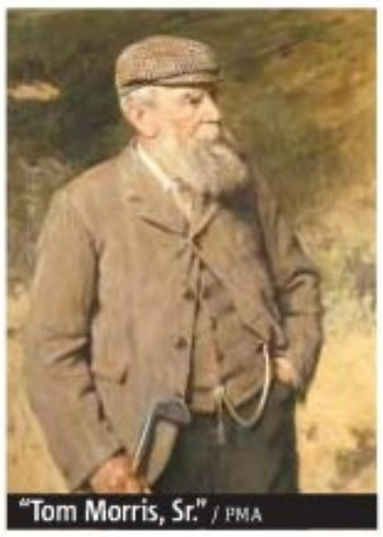
New at the PMA, from golf to nudes

Tee up. "The Art of Golf" exhibit is going on now at the Philadelphia Museum of Art.



"Tom Morris, Sr." / PMA

The Philadelphia Museum of Art is catering to your dad with "The Art of Golf," an exhibit centered around "The Golfers," a 4-by–7-foot painting created in 1847 by Scottish artist Charles Lees.

The painting depicts a game played at St. Andrews, and each painted spectator watching the action is a known 19th-century golfer or golf expert.

Also on display is a "feathery ball" that golfers used back in the day.

The exhibit coincides with the U.S. Open Championship, which will bring Tiger Woods and other famous — though less infamous — golfers to the Merion Golf Club in Ardmore this summer.

The Secessionists

Works by Gustav Klimt and by his protege, Egon Schiele, were also unveiled. Both artists made a splash in the early 1900s with their sensual paintings and were part of a group "who loosely gathered under the rubric 'Secessionists,'" says curator Joseph Richel. "Two critical paintings will be on view: a portrait of a young woman painted some five years after her suicide by Klimt, who himself died before completing it, and a powerfully erotic telling of an ancient Greek myth by Schiele in homage to his master."

Dorothy Robinson's take on the world of gossip

1 More on Kardashian's maternity wear

In a recent blog post, Kim Kardashian defended her choice of wearing tight clothing while pregnant, writing, "I feel my best when I am in heels and chic clothes!" Which may be true, but in the case of this outfit, which was photographed on Wednesday in New York City, it's not the size that's off — it's the fact that it looks like someone went way too crazy with a BeDazzler.

2 Lovato returns to 'The X Factor'

Although departing judges L.A. Reid and Britney Spears won't be back for the upcoming third season of "The X Factor," it looks like Demi Lovato has signed on the dotted line to team up once again with Simon Cowell. "I couldn't be happier that Demi wants to come back this year," blurbs Simon Cowell in a statement by Fox on Thursday. "She's a superstar in her own right and was a fantastic mentor last year. Even though she can be really, really annoying — I truly enjoyed working with her and so did the artists."

3 People can't stop with 'The Hammaconda'

If Jon Hamm has been peeved about all the attention his groin has been getting lately, he's probably not going to like this. Underwear company Jockey is stepping up to help out after reports that Hamm was advised to stop going commando on the "Mad Men" set. "Jockey would like to offer our support for Jon Hamm in the form of a lifetime supply of Jockey underwear," a rep for the company says in a statement.

4 Meet 'chihuahua Jennifer'

Jennifer Lawrence gets a lot of points for her carefree attitude on the red carpet, but the Oscar winner insists she's anything but in those situations. "I'm afraid I'm going to go my whole life being scared like a chihuahua" on red carpets, she tells Fabulous magazine. "It's not my comfort zone. Making movies is where I belong. I shouldn't be heard just talking. So, when I'm doing movies, I'm really happy. That's where I'm comfortable, that's my home. When you put me on a red carpet or on a stage, I turn into chihuahua Jennifer."

5 Angelina Jolie dons a ring

Angelina Jolie turned heads on her return to Los Angeles this week with a gold band on her finger in place of her engagement ring, fueling speculation that she and Brad Pitt have secretly tied the knot. But according to the woman herself, that's not the case. When asked directly by a photographer at LAX if the item is in fact a wedding ring, Jolie responded, "No, it's not," according to TMZ. And there you have it.

Toast to merry old England at Victoria Freehouse

Fish and chips (inset) are on the menu at Victoria Freehouse.

Food and drink. A new British-style pub in Old City is the place to sip a Pimm's Cup and watch a soccer match on the telly.

Bringing a true taste of the U.K. to Old City, the Victoria Freehouse opened its doors earlier this month in the former Swanky Bubbles on Front Street. The menu features an array of familiar English fare, including bangers and mash, fish and chips, and several proper puddings. Owner Ed Strojan's current top pick is the Tikka pizza, made with fresh naan, masala sauce, curried onions, cheddar and coriander oil.

Strojan is no newbie when it comes to English cuisine. He's also the owner of Haddonfield's British Chip Shop and has taken several trips to the U.K. — plus he gets to look to his U.K.-born stepfather for inspiration.

At the bar, 10 taps and two hand pumps serve up strictly English-style ales. Popular pours include Fuller's Organic Honeydew and Young's Double Chocolate Stout. Offerings from a few local breweries that Strojan believes have successfully replicated the English style are also available.

"Brooklyn Brewery is definitely one of them, and Yards is absolutely one that does the British style ale really, really well," says Strojan. "We are in America, so I think we should at least represent our local brewers."

A full cocktail menu is available with classics like a Pimm's Cup, along with scotches from Scotland. "Pubs are mainly about the beer, but I thought it'd be great to have something representative of all the British isles," says Strojan, who's also stocked the bar with a few Irish whiskeys.

The queen's bust
Sitting prominently against the back wall, a bust of Queen Victoria brings an authentic piece of the U.K. to this Philly pub. Strojan picked it up off of eBay after discovering it was one of the original busts commissioned for the queen's jubilee in the late 1800s.

Dave Conn heats up the kitchen at Garces' Tinto

Hot chef. The chef is helping to organize monthly pairings at Tinto while he's juggling family life.

It must feel good to be running the kitchen at a popular Jose Garces restaurant. Chef Dave Conn doesn't let it go to his head, though. The humble chef is helping to organize monthly pairings at Tinto while he juggles family life, taco competitions and the occasional cooking demo. Yet he makes it look so easy.

Can you tell me about the upcoming "Txotx!" dinner on April 4?
It's part of a monthly program that we're doing here at Tinto. We feature different spirits from Spain and serve food that compliments them. This next event will feature cider. In May, it'll be cheries, and then we'll be expanding from there.

How has the turnout been for these dinners?
It varies. We have a 16-seat private dining room, but soon we'll have a little more space in there to suit each concept. The cider dinner will be a little more casual.

When working at a Jose Garces restaurant, how often do you see the man behind the name?
Well, his travel schedule is getting busier and busier as everything grows with work and the Food Network. But he really does a great job of staying in touch and having a strong line of communication. He's a great guy to work for. I've been with the company since the opening of Amada in 2005.

Earlier this year you gave a cooking demo to kick off to Restaurant Week. Do you like teaching?
Yeah, absolutely! I'm open to any opportunity where I get a chance to promote the business. I was also in Arizona just before we opened a location in Scottsdale and participated in a taco competition. It was great! There were more than 50 competitors. And we won!

Are you from Philly originally?
No, I'm from Maryland. I was cooking in Baltimore through high school and for two years after. Philly was the next logical step.

What's your neighborhood?
I'm in Graduate Hospital.

Oh yeah? How do you feel about Guy Fieri's recent trip to Sidebar? Get out! I didn't know he was there. I love Sidecar, that's my spot. What can you do? It's not like it's a bad thing, really.

Is that where you go on your day off?
I have a young family — my daughter is almost 2 and my son was just born in January. My wife and I usually hang around the house, do the family thing.

Wondering what to do with Easter egg leftovers? Dessert!

Recipe. Don't throw the battered mix of whites and yolks down the drain. Chef Mario Batali tells us how to make the most of the leftover goo.

Repurpose your eggs this Easter.

Chilled Zabaglione with Raspberries and Amaretti

Recipe courtesy of Molto Batali (ecco, 2011)

Cool, creamy and not too sweet, this is my favorite version of the classic Sicilian dessert that is often served in old-time "red sauce" Italian restaurants all over the United States. You can serve this with any fruit, or even as a decadent side dollop to a fine pie instead of whipped cream.

Ingredients

- 8 large egg yolks, at room temperature
- 2/3 cup sugar
- 1/4 cup dry Marsala or sherry
- 1 1/2 cups heavy cream, chilled
- 2 pints fresh raspberries
- 8 to 10 amaretti cookies

1 Put a mixing bowl in the fridge to chill it.

2 Fit a heat-proof bowl over a saucepan of barely simmering water, making sure the bottom of the bowl does not touch the water. (Or alternatively, use a double boiler.)

3 Place the egg yolks, sugar and Marsala into the heat-proof bowl, and whisk together well. Using an electric mixer, beat the mixture until it is pale and thick — about tripled in volume and happily frothy. (This could take up to 10 minutes. Be careful not to let the water boil beneath the bowl; it should stay at a high simmer.)

4 Remove the bowl from its pan of simmering water, and place it on a cold surface or stand it in a pan of cold water. Whisk constantly until the mixture is cool, and then set it aside.

5 In the chilled mixing bowl, whip the cream until it reaches firm peaks. Fold about a third of the whipped cream into the egg mixture to lighten it. Then gently fold in the rest of the whipped cream. (The zabaglione can be made up to four hours in advance of serving and refrigerated. Remove it from the refrigerator 20 minutes before serving to allow it to soften and come to a cool temperature, around 50 degrees F.)

6 Divide the raspberries among eight to ten old-style champagne coupes or large wineglasses. Spoon the zabaglione over the raspberries, and crumble an amaretti cookie over each serving. Serve immediately.

NOTICE
SEPTA'S FISCAL YEAR 2014 ANNUAL SERVICE PLAN PUBLIC HEARINGS

The Southeastern Pennsylvania Transportation Authority (SEPTA) will conduct public hearings regarding the proposed Fiscal Year 2014 Annual Service Plan.

Proposal

The proposed Annual Service Plan includes changes to the following SEPTA routes:City Transit Routes 3, 73 and 84 and Suburban Transit Routes 115 and 117. In addition, it is proposed to revise the Service Standards and Process document in order to be in compliance with Title VI statutes regarding "Transit and Regional Rail Passenger Amenities" and the creation of a new standard titled "Major Service Changes". Edits regarding route and service information, SEPTA's vehicle fleet and other minor revisions are proposed to keep the document up-to-date.

A Community Benefit Analysis has been performed for all of these projects. Implementation of the recommended projects will proceed pending the outcome of the public hearing process, SEPTA Board approval, and available funding.

CITY TRANSIT

Route 3 – Extension to the Smith Memorial Playground

The Smith Memorial Playground approached both SEPTA and the City of Philadelphia Mayor's Office of Transportation and Utilities regarding the potential for bus service to their facility, within Fairmount Park. Attracting more visitors through direct transit access from local neighborhoods is an important goal of the Smith Memorial Playground.

SEPTA conducted an analysis into the potential options and determined that extending Route 3 service from its current western terminus, at 33rd Street and Cecil B. Moore Avenue, via Reservoir Drive would be the most effective way to provide transit access to the Smith Memorial Playground. SEPTA buses would layover at the Smith Memorial Playground before returning eastbound to Frankford Transportation Center, via Reservoir Drive and 33rd Street. This short extension of Route 3 provides direct transit access to the Smith Memorial Playground from several North and Northeast Philadelphia communities.

Route 3 extended service was developed to coincide with peak visitor volumes to the Smith Memorial Playground. Consequently, SEPTA has proposed to experimentally operate the Route 3 extension on weekends only between the open hours of the Smith Memorial Playground – 10:00 AM to 4:00 PM. This equates to 19 extended round-trips per day. Active promotion of this new transit accessibility to returning and first-time visitors will be conducted by the Smith Memorial Playground. It is anticipated that the revenue generated through new riders will be sufficient to offset an acceptable level of the additional operating costs associated with the extension.

Route 84 – Service to the Arsenal Shopping Center

Commercial Developer Langan Group expressed interest in having SEPTA services integrated into the development of their new shopping center near Bridge and Tacony Streets in Northeast Philadelphia.

Route 84 currently operates on Tacony Street directly in front of the proposed shopping center. Route 84 would provide direct access to a full service grocery store and a host of other retail options for densely populated communities along the Bridge Street corridor, as well as communities near the Torresdale Avenue corridor. Route 84 would also provide direct access to many employment opportunities for individuals who would have the option to transfer from the Market-Frankford Line.

Route 84 would turn into the shopping center serving a single stop location in both the northbound and southbound directions. On weekdays, Route 84 operates a 25 minute frequency during the day, and operates an approximate 50 minute frequency during the evenings. Route 84 operates a 60 minute frequency on both Saturday and Sunday. Based on current Route 84 frequencies, every trip would serve the Arsenal Shopping Center during normal hours of operation.

SUBURBAN TRANSIT

Route 115 – Experimental routing to serve Eagle Road in Haverford Township

SEPTA staff received an external request to change Route 115 to operate via Eagle Road. Presently, a new YMCA is being built and the facility is scheduled to open in the Fall of 2013. The Route 115 tariff incorporates an alternate routing to utilize Darby and Eagle Roads, and it is recommended that implementation would occur under Experimental Order authority for a one-year period. This tactic would allow time for sufficient evaluation to determine if the service is warranted on a permanent basis. Service would operate only on weekdays to minimize the increased operating costs.

Route 117 – Consolidation of alternate routings between Crozer Chester Medical Center and 352 Plaza

As part of the FY 2005 Annual Service Plan, an alternate routing was created along 22nd Street and Edgmont Avenue to continue serving portions of Chester City, Parkside and Brookhaven Boroughs. Presently, the base route travels through portions of Upland and Brookhaven Boroughs. This staff proposal aims to consolidate the best ridership portions of the alternate and base routes to form one unified route between Crozer Chester Medical Center and 352 Plaza. This proposal would offer the following benefits:

- Riders would no longer be confused if the bus travels "Via Upland" or Via Parkside" as all trips would follow the same routing
- Riders along 6th Street, Bridgewater and Brookhaven Roads would receive service every 30 minutes during daylight hours on weekdays and Saturdays, instead of every 60 minutes
- Service along 22nd Street and Edgmont Avenue would be scheduled every 30 minutes during day light hours on weekdays and Saturdays, instead of every 60 minutes
- New Sunday service would operate along 22nd Street and Edgmont Avenue providing new transit travel opportunities
- New transit service would be offered along Upland Road and Main Street that would improve transit access for present and future riders.

Tariff Documents

A copy of the proposed Fiscal Year 2014 Annual Service Plan and associated tariffs, which provide a detailed description of the proposed changes, is available for inspection at SEPTA's Customer Service Office, 1234 Market Street, Lobby, Philadelphia, PA 19107. The proposed Annual Service Plan with maps is on the SEPTA website at www.septa.org/notice. Links to the associated tariffs are also available there.

If you wish to submit comments by e-mail, you may do so on the SEPTA website at www.septa.org/notice. A form to submit comments will be available.

Horoscope

♈ Aries | March 21 - April 20. It won't be an absence of good ideas that could bog you down. Your problems are likely to come from the way you try to implement them.

♉ Taurus | April 21 - May 21. Even though you'll have the ability to gain ground on an endeavor, if you let your guard down you're likely to lose a little in the end.

♊ Gemini | May 22 - June 20. Associate with friends who appreciate material things much as you do. Pals who are far too loose could trigger extravagance.

♋ Cancer | June 21 - July 22. Your judgment in career matters is quite astute, yet there's a chance you could suddenly change your plans and not follow through.

♌ Leo | July 23 - Aug. 22. Unfortunately, not everyone you encounter can be taken seriously. If you're smart, you'll keep your guard up.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23 - Sept. 22. Although at times you can be a very generous person, this might not be the case today.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23 - Oct. 22. Be as diplomatic as you can, especially if you're trying to get others to endorse a difficult position.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23 - Nov. 21. Devote your time to persons who truly are in need of your help and expertise, not to those who are capable of making it on their own.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21 - Feb 18. Proposals might sound good and even look great on paper, but don't jump on board with them without first checking things out.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19 - March 20. Do not make a commitment that you know is likely to collapse in a heartbeat.

Seat sexism misses point

Re: "Take a moment of silence for chivalry" (Metro, March 27)

In my opinion, both recent responses to an original letter about courtesy on the subway miss the point. Any time a woman points out genuine rudeness, the accusations of wanting special treatment are trotted out when the point is that politeness should not be "special" at all. Instead of saying that women should have to fight for subway seats, why not encourage everyone to be more considerate of other passengers? I'm not saying to always give your seat up, just that squabbling over a few square inches of hard plastic like it's the Iron Throne of Westeros is a bit pathetic. The solution is to say everyone needs to be more considerate of others, NOT to tell women "everyone has to fight, get over it." Equality should not be a race to the bottom.

Underdog Phillies happy to be flying under the radar on rare occasion

MLB. Lowered expectations from the media mean no added pressure for the 2013 Phillies.

There was something missing from Bright House Field this spring. The palpable buzz that was part of the Clearwater experience since the Phillies won the World Series in 2008 was gone.

The Phillies are believed to be on the downside, according to most pundits. Most scribes are picking the Nationals. Not one of the seven Sports Illustrated writers predicts that the Phillies will make the playoffs.

"I don't care what anyone says," Cliff Lee said. "Feel free to overlook this team. That's fine with us."

A big reason that prognosticators aren't picking the Phillies as a playoff team is the uncertain status of Roy Halladay. Who knows what kind of season the once brilliant starter will have?

Carlos Ruiz is one of five Phillies who have been around since the organization's greatest era commenced in 2007. Chooch relishes being overlooked.

"That's fine with me," Ruiz said. "I think it's good. But when you look at some of the hitters and pitchers we have, I find it strange."

The Red Sox charismatic Ryan Dempster thinks it's silly to write off the Phillies.

"Don't count out a champion," Dempster said. "But maybe it'll be a good thing for them to not [be the focal point]. But on the other side of that, they always dealt well with pressure. If they stay healthy, they have some very talented players."

Phils ready to jump on the Hamels train

MLB. Cole Hamels has taken on a new role as the undisputed team leader and ace of the Phillies.

The silver lining in the dark cloud that was the Phillies' 2012 season was Cole Hamels signing a six-year extension for $144 million.

Hamels, who has won NL and World Series MVP awards, had an easy out. He could have noted the Phillies have an aging core and the most glorious run in the franchise's 130-year history is over.

"But I think this team is still an elite team," Hamels said. "I think we can be an elite team for many years. I love it here. There were so many reasons to stay."

If Hamels went the free-agent route, he would be a richer man. Zack Greinke signed with the Dodgers for $147 million. Greinke has a playoff line of 1-1 with a 6.48 ERA.

"There's little doubt about that," a NL scout said. "Hamels left $30, maybe $40 million on the table. But he signed a huge contract, and if he's happy in Philadelphia, that's great for him. Expect a big year from him."

Hamels won a career-high 17 games last season. He'll most likely be the team's stopper. The 29-year-old will make the first season-opening start of his career next week.

"I want to do as well as I can do this season," Hamels said. "I want to win every game I can and get back to the playoffs."

The Phillies will need a very strong year from Hamels, especially if there are issues with Roy Halladay.

"The Phillies need 45 wins from Hamels, Halladay and Lee," MLB analyst Mitch Williams said. "If Halladay has trouble, someone else has to pick up the slack, and I wouldn't be surprised if it's Cole. He's very impressive."

He said it

"He's the kind of guy you need to lead you to the playoffs and to the World Series. I can't wait to play behind him when the games really count."

Michael Young, on Cole Hamels

According to Las Vegas oddsmakers, Hamels only Clayton Kershaw and Stephen Strasburg have a greater chance to score the NL Cy Young Award.

"That stuff doesn't mean that much to me,"Hamels said. "I just want to win, get to the playoffs and get back to the World Series."

Hamels has morphed considerably. As a rookie in 2006, Hamels mentioned how much he would like to win a Cy Young Award and pitch a no-hitter. Hamels has evolved as a person and as a hurler.

"He's a tremendous pitcher," Yankees second baseman Robinson Cano said. "It's huge for any team to have an ace like him in their rotation."

ED CONDRAN
sports@metro.us

Being Hamels

1 Hamels isn't as accessible as he once was. After being burnt in a misquote during the 2009 World Series, Hamels watches what he says.

2 Cole pounds the plate. "Having Cliff Lee and Roy Halladay there has had an impact on Cole," former Phillie Vance Worley said. "Cole challenges the hitters just like they do. With his stuff, why not go after the hitters?"

3 The greatest misconception about Hamels is that he's a California guy. "Ever since I came to Philly, I've completely embraced it," he said. "It's great to be in Philly."

Hamels won a career-high 17 games last season. / GETTY IMAGES

For starters: Looking at the rotation

MLB. Kendrick and Lannan round out a starting rotation that needs to eat up innings.

Halladay allowed two runs in 4 1/3 innings Thursday.
GETTY IMAGES

Cole Hamels: He's coming off the best season of his career and could be better. He has one of the best changeups, a very good fastball, a plus curve and a terrific cutter.

Roy Halladay: His velocity is down. He has had trouble throwing first-ball strikes and not as many batters are swinging and missing at his fastball.

Cliff Lee: He hasn't had the best spring, but he will continue to attack the plate. He will throw strikes with each of his plus pitches. He's ultimate competitor.

Kyle Kendrick: It's the first time since 2008 Kendrick enters as a starter. He has looked good this spring, particularly off-speed stuff.

John Lannan: The Blue Jays crushed him in his last start. As fifth starters go, Lannan is decent. He has also pitched well at times. Who will show up next week? ED CONDRAN

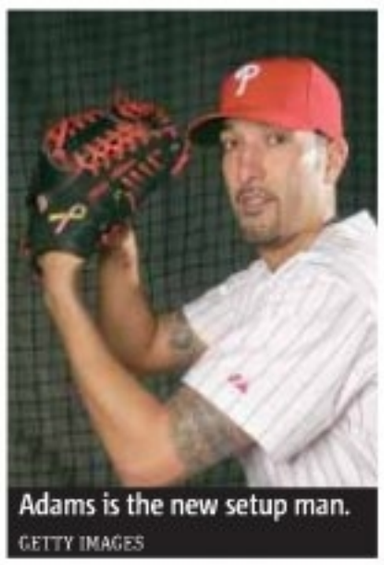
Bullpen could wind up being huge strength

MLB. A new group of relievers could be the difference between a playoff run and another lost season.



Adams is the new setup man.
GETTY IMAGES

There are a number of reasons the Phillies failed to make the playoffs in 2012. The biggest reason for the lack of meaningful baseball in October was a bad bullpen.

The Phillies' relievers blew 13 leads in the eighth inning. They lost seven games in which they were one out from getting the ball to Jonathan Papelbon. The Phillies lost 20 games in which they had the lead or were tied in the eighth.

It wasn't surprising that Ruben Amaro signed the best setup man available when he inked Mike Adams.

"I'm well aware of what happened [with the Phillies] last year," Adams said. "You need to have someone help close out the game. You can't blow leads and waste a strong effort from a starter."

Charlie Manuel had little faith in a 'pen that was at a deficit thanks to the injured Jose Contreras and the disaster that was Chad Qualls. Phillies starters often threw one inning too many. That's why Adams and veteran Chad Durbin were added.

"I think the bullpen will be a strength," Durbin said. ED CONDRAN

What to look forward to this year

MLB. Here's our fans' guide to Phillies baseball. The season starts April 1 in Atlanta.

The Phillies need to win early, with seven of their first 10 series coming against teams with losing records from 2012. Here's what else to watch:

Save the date: The Phillies head to Nationals Park on May 24. It's a full-blown rivalry with plenty of bad blood and storylines (Cole Hamels vs. Bryce Harper?). The Nats are the team to beat.

Chooch's void: With Carlos Ruiz suspended for 25 games, it's up to Erik Kratz to catch in April. He showed good pop and an excellent throwing arm late last season.

Ben Revere: We already know B-Rev is a character. When not stealing bases or chasing balls driven into the gap, he loves to laugh.

Bye, Astros: Houston is in the AL. Expect wins in the NL Central to dramatically diminish without the pathetic Astros.

Watch the Braves: No team has more firepower than Atlanta. We'll find out early if the Phillies' aces can tame the Upton Brothers, Jason Heyward and Co. ED CONDRAN

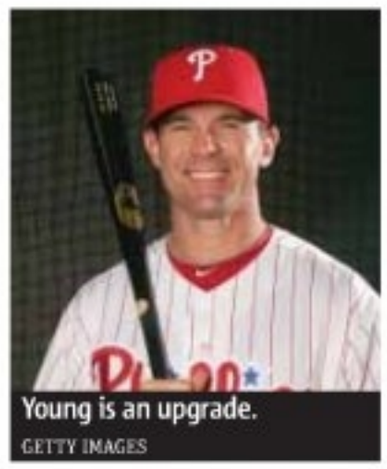
Swing, batter: Projecting the lineup card

MLB. Charlie Manuel has to decide who his lead-off hitter is.



Young is an upgrade.
GETTY IMAGES

Charlie Manuel hasn't chiseled his lineup in stone, and don't expect a revelation until Monday. Here's a breakdown:

1. Jimmy Rollins: Best numbers are out of the leadoff spot. That's where he's most comfortable.

2. Ben Revere: The speedy center fielder could bat in a variety of spots — lead-off, seven and/or eight hole. He doesn't strike out.

3. Chase Utley: He's made it through the entire spring without breaking down. The magic number is 130 games.

4. Ryan Howard: After Howard returned last July, the Phillies played .600 ball. Thirty-five homers and 130 RBIs? Not out of the question.

5. Michael Young: He typically hits for high average and has gap power. Huge upgrade over Placido Polanco.

6. Dom Brown: Brown earned right-field gig with a tremendous spring. He has the tools and now the maturity.

7. John Mayberry/Laynce Nix: Can Nix put up decent numbers after struggling in 2012? Can Mayberry become the player he was in 2011?

8. Carlos Ruiz: When Ruiz returns, watch out. Best eight-hole hitter in the game. ED CONDRAN

Welcome back to the show, Big Piece

MLB. Ryan Howard is hitting bombs and driving in runs again for the Phillies.

There were question marks after Roy Halladay's, Chase Utley's and Ryan Howard's names before spring training commenced. You can now change the punctuation after the Big Piece's name to an exclamation point.

Howard stroked a team-high seven home runs and 16 RBIs in spring training while sporting a robust .328 average.

"When I was getting started down here, I felt good," he said. "I'm finally recovered from the injury. It wasn't easy coming back and playing last year. I was not 100 percent, but I did my best."

While playing on one leg last season, Howard drove in 56 runs in 71 games. That's impressive considering the circumstances. Howard, who has four more years left on his contract, believes he can once again be an elite power hitter.

"I see no reason why I won't be productive," Howard said. "I don't see a reason why I won't have the best year of my career. I feel that good."

Is Howard doing anything special?

"I can't say that I'm doing anything different," Howard said. "I'm just doing what I do."
